Emergence: A Theoretical Model for Understanding Recovery from Gambling Addiction

Date: Friday January 24, 2014

Location: Tucson, Arizona

6 CEU's available

Presenter: Tom Litwicki, M.Ed., LISAC

Course description:

Emergence is the process by which complex structures arise from the interaction of many relatively less complex parts that coexist over a period of space & time. During this course participants will be introduced to this theory of development and learn initial strategies that support the emergence and sustenance of recovery from gambling addiction.

Tom Litwicki, M.Ed., LISAC, has extensive experience managing residential treatment programs during a 20 year career with AZ dept. of Corrections.

Tom has a Master in Counseling from NAU, and is licensed as an Independent Substance Abuse Counselor. Tom has been trained in Motivational Interviewing through the Center for Applied Behavioral Health Policy at ASU, and utilizes collaborative counseling methods to help persons struggling with change and the internal motivation required to achieve their goals. He also served as the President of the Board of Directors for SMART Recovery, an international not for profit organization that strives to provide no cost community support groups to persons recovering from addiction.
